

MacArthur Inquiry Shows No Signs Of Fading Away Soon

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Gen. Omar Bradley said today "there is danger of the Russians moving into Iran and starting another aggression."

Bradley made the statement in reply to questions by Senator Brewster (R-Me.) at the Senate inquiry into the dismissal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Menace Increases

Brewster asked Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, what consideration the chiefs have been giving "to the apparent imminence of trouble in Iran," with relation to the desirability of ending the Korean war.

"Well, of course," Bradley replied, "The longer the problem in Korea keeps up, the less we are prepared to meet any movement anywhere else. I would prefer not to say as to Iran, because I am not sure that has too much application in our case."

"There is a danger, of course, of the Russians moving into Iran and starting another aggression. Whether or not that is any more dangerous than Yugoslavia or Indo-China or some other place, I am not prepared to say; but certainly it is a point of danger and we would like to be in a better position to meet any further aggression if it occurred."

Acheson On List

Bradley was before the Senate armed forces and foreign relations committees for the sixth day.

Chairman Russell (D-Ga.) said he hoped to complete examination of Bradley at today's session.

Some Senators of both parties were calling for a early end to the investigation, but there were no signs it would be closed down soon.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, probably will be next, followed by Admiral Forrest P. Sherman and Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, navy and air force leaders.

Secretary of State Acheson also is high on the witness list, which may include many others. In addition, MacArthur may testify again.

Publisher Stair Dies In Detroit

Spectacular Career Ends At Age Of 92

DETROIT — (AP) — E. D. Stair, publisher, theater man and banker in a spectacular career—died today.

The former publisher of the Detroit Free Press died at Bon Secours hospital in suburban Grosse Pointe at 12:20 a. m. (EST).

He was 92 years old.

Death followed a series of strokes over an extended period of time. He had been brought to the hospital Sunday.

For all of 80 years—from printer's devil days of his boyhood to publisher of a big newspaper and captain of finance—Stair was a busy man.

He had published the Free Press for nearly 35 years. Before that he was famed in theatrical circles as producer and theater magnate.

The fortune he made in the theater enabled him to return to the newspaper world as owner of his own metropolitan paper.

Stair sold the Free Press in 1940 to John S. Knight, present publisher and head of Knight Newspapers, Inc., and devoted himself to real holdings and other interests.

Homeless Orphan, 19, Sentenced To Life For Killing Principal

RUTHERFORD, N. C. — (AP) — A 19-year old orphan who "never had any home life" must serve a life sentence for the murder of his orphanage-school principal.

A jury yesterday found Charles Hugh Justice guilty of first degree murder in the shooting last March 12 of W. E. Sweatt, 50, superintendent of the Alexander schools, a private institution.

The Rutherford county superior court jury recommended mercy and Judge Frank Armstrong pronounced the mandatory life sentence.

Justice, from nearby Ashville was charged with ambushing Sweatt in a darkened hall outside the principal's office after he had been scolded for breaking a rule against dating girls on the campus.

Legislators Put On Last Minute Rush In Lansing

Revision Of Liquor Law Coming Up

LANSING — (AP) — The house today neared the bottom of a huge pile of bills it must dispose of before the Friday adjournment rush.

On top of the remaining pile were measures to revise state liquor laws, assess stiff penalties for overloaded trucks, and to give the governor broad powers of seizure and the like in case of enemy attack.

The chamber put on a burst of speed yesterday to pass 10 bills, headed by a revising of unemployment compensation laws and a boost in unemployment benefits.

Jobless Benefits Up

The benefits would be raised $3 across the board in a measure that already has senate approval of its main features. House approval was nearly unanimous.

Maximum benefits for a person without children would be raised from $24 to $27. The bill takes away the governor's right to appoint a director and permits the commission to make the appointments. It eases some disqualifications and makes other administrative changes.

Rep. James Goulette (R-Iron Mountain) was defeated in a second attempt to raise the additional benefit for dependent children from $2 to $3, despite backing of Democrats and some Republicans.

Bus Bill Tabled

A 48-48 vote defeated a measure to require Michigan school buses to be painted chrome yellow, the standard color used by all other states. The bill, however, was laid on the table for a possible second

Stricken Kansas Town Gets Aid

Flood Fatal To Four; Loss Over Million

HAYS, Kas. — (AP) — Volunteers and relief organizations today turned to the task of repairing damage and aiding victims of a fast-moving flood that swept through almost half of Hays.

At least four persons lost their lives. Two others are missing and believed drowned. Two persons previously reported missing have been found. They are Judy Maska, 10, and Joe Rohr, an elderly man.

Mayor A. M. Harkness estimated property damage at more than $1,000,000.

Swirling waters from normally quiet Big Creek spread over 75 blocks of this northwest Kansas town of 8,000 early yesterday. Hundreds of persons fled their homes, many clad only in nightclothes.

Others climbed to second stories or rooftops. Boats, tractors and even bulldozers and road graders were used to evacuate stranded persons.

Torrential rains forced Big Creek out of its banks, giving the town little warning. The flood waters were reported 15 feet deep in some spots.

The waters receded swiftly and many persons began returning to some of the lesser damaged homes last night.

Freighter Sykes Sets New Record For Cargo Of Ore

SAULT STE MARIE, Mich. — (AP) — The giant freighter Wilfred Sykes passed through the Sault locks today carrying the largest single cargo in Great Lakes history.

The 678-foot vessel of the Inland Steel Co. of Chicago reported a cargo of 20,084 gross tons of iron ore.

The Sykes set a Great Lakes record last year of 18,929 gross tons.

The big ship, which averages two and a half round trips through the Great Lakes a week, was bound for Indiana Harbor, Inc., at the southern tip of Lake Michigan.

Taking note of the record event, the Sykes' captain George Fisher passed out cigars and candy to locks officials as the ship passed through.

Americans Touring Europe Last Year Spent $225,000,000

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Some 302,000 Americans went to Europe last year on an average two month trip and they spent $225,000,000 for transportation, food, sight and lodging.

The department of Commerce, reporting these figures, said it was the second biggest travelling year for Americans, with the Korean war hardly even slowing the movement.

The biggest year was 1929, when 350,000 Americans took the big trip. But they spent less — $213,000,000.

The department said the average jaunt cost $1,331, of which fares and expenses en route come to $611.

House Overrides Veto Of Gas Tax Increase By Governor Williams

LANSING — (AP) — The house on the second attempt today overrode the governor's veto of the 1.5 cent gasoline tax increase.

Four Democrats deserted party ranks to vote with the 66 Republicans in favor of passing the tax despite Governor Williams' disapproval. The vote was 70 to 29.

One Short Last Week

In the first attempt to override last week, the complete Democratic delegation of 34 members stuck together to vote against overriding.

The 66 Republicans were one short of the necessary two thirds at the first try.

The House action removes the last barrier to raising the state gasoline tax from three to 4.5 cents a gallon July 1.

The Senate already has overridden the veto.

Preceding today's house vote, however, there were indications that opponents would try to block the increase in the courts.

Rep. Ed Carey (D-Detroit), house minority floor leader, made a statement for the record in which he challenged the constitutionality of the house procedure.

The four Democrats who jumped ed the party fence to vote in favor of overriding were Reps. Michael J. O'Brien, Thomas C. O'Brien, John J. Fitzpatrick and Joseph G. O'Connor, all of Detroit.

It was believed that pressure from the Wayne county road commission and Detroit city officials who favor the boost was responsible for the Democratic shift.

A corporations franchise tax also was due to come up for consideration.

LANSING — (AP) — The house taxation committee today approved a three and a half mill corporation franchise tax, removal of the franchise tax ceiling and a three per cent tax on private sales of used cars.

These developments came as the house prepared to make its second attempt to override Governor Williams' veto of the 1.5 cent increase in the gasoline tax.

Would Cover Deficit

Rep. Louis E. Anderson (R-Northport), chairman of the house committee, said the committee version of the franchise tax would raise $20,000,000 in new money. The used car tax is estimated to

Britain And U. S. Boomed By 30,000 Moslems In Iran

By ROBERT B. HEWETT
TEHRAN, Iran — (AP) — Tension mounted today in crisis-torn Tehran after some 30,000 Moslems—booming the United States and Britain—vowed yesterday to wage holy war if need be to nationalize the nation's rich oil resources.

An air of crisis gripped the Iranian capital as police and troops, on a 24-hour alert, patrolled the streets in trucks and on horseback. A dozen tanks roamed the city, ready for action.

A resolution declaring "strong hatred" of the United States and Britain was cheered wildly at yesterday's mass rally, called by Moslem religious leaders and Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's national bloc.

The cheering reached fever pitch when black-bearded Chams Ghanabadi, leader of the militant Mujaheddin Islam (fighters for Islam), declared:

"All loyal Moslems will throw the British bandits into the Persian Gulf, if they do not leave the country."

Thousands of Moslem religious banners were waved in approval when another speaker, parliament member Hossein Makki, declared a recent statement by the U. S. State Department was "a stab in the back of the Iranian nation."

The state department, which has urged moderation on both sides of the dispute, has been accused by Iranians of backing the British stand against nationalization.

Not Carried Out
Makki is Mossadegh's right hand man in parliament and secretary of the joint Senate-Majlis oil nationalization board.

The rally—called by Ayatullah Seyed Abolghasem Kashani, one of Iran's leading priests—was the latest move to step up pressure against any British resistance to government seizure of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

The law nationalizing the giant firm was enacted more than three weeks ago, but the government was given no practical hint of how it intends to carry it out.

Plane Plunges; 6 Men Killed

Five Survive Crash At New Lisbon, Ind.

NEW LISBON, Ind. — (AP) — An air force plane from Patterson, field, Dayton, O., burned after crashing on a farm near here today and at least six of the men aboard were killed.

There were at least five survivors. They suffered burns and serious injuries.

State troopers first said some men might have parachuted from the plane, but later they discounted this possibility.

A newsman at the scene said the pilot apparently was trying to make a forced landing, but the plane lost altitude too fast to make a clearing only a few hundred yards ahead.

Attack Of UN Gains All Along 80-Mile Front

Key Supply Road Of Enemy Cut Off

TOKYO — (AP) — Communist troops retreated along an 80 mile front in Korea today before northward trusting allied tanks and infantry.

The entire U. S. 10th corps opened a counterattack across the East Central Front and gained up to three and one-half miles. In the attacking force were the second infantry and first marine divisions. They recaptured Hangye, key road center.

All along the front from Munsan in the far west to Pungnam in the east-central sector, the Reds were pulling back toward North Korea.

Spearhead Crushed
On the eastern front, allied forces slashing through rugged mountains cut off the spearhead of the last Red offensive force of their second spring drive. The allies seized a key pass on the Communist supply route to Chinese troops fighting 25 miles south of the Red Korean border for control of the main trans - Korean highway in that area.

In the west central front, an allied spokesman said Red forces were making "hasty but orderly" withdrawals.

In the far west, South Korean troops pushed within four miles of the Red Korean border.

The valiant U. S. second division led Wednesday's big U. N. counter-attack across 20 miles of the east-central front.

Tanks led American infantrymen back into Hangye key highway junction, 13 miles south of the border.

Americans Rescued
The tanks and doughboys drove into shattered Chinese remnants after planes and massed artillery paved the way with a tree shattering bombardment. Red forces withdrew.

Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, 10th corps commander who ordered the counterattack, said it "has made excellent progress."

On the adjoining west-central sector, advancing American tanks and infantrymen reported little opposition.

Hundreds Hunt California Girl

Lakes To Be Dragged For Kidnaped Child

By JAMES R. BACON
SANTA ANA, Calif. — (AP) — The intensive search for missing 10-year-old Patricia Jean Hull extended into remote and mountainous areas of Orange county today and Sheriff James A. Musick said water behind two dams will be dragged.

While the search by hundreds of volunteers, marines, sheriff's deputies and Boy Scouts went on, the ceaseless questioning of Henry Ford McCracken, held on suspicion of kidnapping, continued.

Sheriff Musick, former University of Southern California football player, returned last night from Klamath Falls, Ore., where he had taken a prisoner, and took over personal direction of the investigation.

The pigtailed Patricia disappeared after attending a double-feature movie matinee last Saturday. McCracken, 34, a guitar player and handyman, has admitted he attended the same movie. But he has denied assertions by witnesses that he left the theater in nearby Buena Park with the child and took her to his auto court cabin.

Later bloodstains were found in McCracken's cabin and sheriff's investigators said the blood was not the same type as McCracken's. Tests are being made to determine if the blood is Patricia's type.

Joseph Harris Found Guilty

Gets 3 To 5 Years In State Prison

Joseph Harris of Wilson was found guilty in Menominee county circuit court late yesterday of a charge of leaving the scene of a fatal accident in connection with the death of Kaye Langley, 14, of Spalding.

Judge Glenn W. Jackson sentenced Harris to serve from three to five years in the Marquette state branch prison.

The circuit court jury, with Arthur Berger of Gouley township as foreman, reached its decision on the second ballot after one and a half hours of deliberation.

The jury decided that Harris was the driver of the automobile that struck and killed the Langley girl while she was walking with three companions on Highway U. S. 2-41 between the villages of Powers and Spalding. Kaye's sister, Gail, suffered fractures to her back and left leg, and Judith Nowack was bruised about the body. The other companion, Raymond Fleetwood, was not hit by the Harris car.

Evidence showed that Harris did not stop after the accident. He was located and arrested several hours later.

Four Start Prison Terms At Marquette

Four young men sentenced by Judge Glenn W. Jackson at the recent term of circuit court have been taken to Marquette by Sheriff William E. Miron to begin terms in state branch prison.

James Cherwinski, 17, Munising, was sentenced to 2 years with a recommendation that he be enrolled at Cassidy Lake for training in a trade; and Robert Rexstrew, 21, Munising, was sentenced to 2 years in prison. Both were charged with breaking and entering in the night time.

George Nedeau, 33, of Nahma, was sentenced to 1 to 15 years for violation of probation; and Joseph Peters, 31, of Ensign, received a sentence of 3 years for auto theft in violation of his previous probation term.

Flink began work as a substitute carrier in January, 1907, and received a regular appointment on Dec. 1 of that year.

Four years ago he was assigned to the "mounted route," on which he covers the entire western portion of the city with a Jeep mail-truck. On this "rural route" within the city limits, Flink carries regular mail in the morning and delivers parcel post in the afternoon.

When Flink had reached the 40-year mark in service four years ago, he says he "had walked around the world five times and was going well into his sixth lap." Flink attended the Escanaba city schools before going into the government service. He served briefly during World War I with the U. S. Army Signal Corps. He is a member of the American Legion.

He is married and has two children, John L., serving in the army at Fort Knox, Ky., and Nancy, in nurse's training at Marquette. Mr. and Mrs. Flink recently sold their home on Lake Shore drive, and will retire to a three-acre tract and cottage along the banks of the Ford River near Hyde.

Nominate New Potato Group

Bark River Grower One Of Nominees

Michigan members of the committee to recommend rules and regulations for potato marketing in six north central states will soon be known. Nominations were made at recent regional meetings of growers and Clarence Prentice, Michigan State College agricultural economist, reports the new committee will take over on July 1.

Last October, growers in Michigan, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Minnesota and northern parts of Indiana and Iowa approved the revised marketing program. A committee of 18 from the six states will recommend marketing rules and regulations which will be enforced through an order from the secretary of agriculture, Prentice explained.

For the first time since the North Central Potato Committee was organized in 1937 one familiar face will be missing from around the table. Fred Higst, Cadillac, secretary-manager of the Michigan Potato Growers Exchange, was not among the nominees at his own request. He has been chairman of the committee for the last several years.

No price supports are available to potato growers for the 1951 crop, but they must conform with regulations set up by the committee. Size and quality of the crop, now being planted, will determine the rules, which will be announced near harvest time, officials report.

From the list of two nominees for each position, made by the farmers and packers, the secretary of agriculture will name members of the committee.

For the Upper Peninsula, Mat Purri, Atlantic Mine and Conrad

Herioux, Bark River were committee nominees with George Nygaard, Felch and Arvid Bergdahl, Skandia alternate choices.

Processors selected William Hadder, Six Lakes, and Arnold Engleman, Chippewa Lake for committeemen. At the same time they named for alternates, John Black, McBrides and Hugh Boss, Greenville.

Industry Is Not Doomed By Court Verdict On Fair Trade

THE decision of the U. S. Supreme Court invalidating state fair trade laws accomplishes by judicial decree what the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade commission has been seeking to accomplish by appeals to the U. S. congress. The high court struck the foundation from fair trade practices in virtually every state in the union by the decision announced Monday. The court ruled that no merchant can be bound by a fair trade agreement that he did not sign. In the past it has been the practice of producers seeking fair trade protection for its products to sign a pricing agreement with one or more retailers within a state. Notices to other retailers then made the fair trade prices binding upon all dealers, enforceable in the courts.

The fair trade laws of the various states developed after 1937 when congress enacted a law enabling individual states to adopt legislation to permit merchants and manufacturers to enter into agreements for minimum prices. The purpose of the act was to prevent cutthroat competition, according to its proponents.

Both the Justice Department and the Federal Trade commission have regarded the fair trade laws as inimical to public interest and have urged the repeal of the federal law. The Supreme Court's action serves the same purpose.

Strangely enough, many manufacturers and businessmen who recognize the great evil of government price fixing do not recognize any in price fixing by private business, subject to enforcement by government.

Much has been said and written about fair trade laws and their effect upon the consuming public. Proponents claim that the public is protected by the fair trade laws because ruinous competition is eliminated. Opponents contend that the public is denied the benefits of unrestricted competition as a result of fair trade laws that give the weight of legal enforcement to price fixing.

We doubt very much that industry is doomed to destruction because of the invalidation of the fair trade laws.

Compare Korean Casualties With World War II

BECAUSE of the stress laid upon our Korean casualties by General MacArthur and others, the idea has got around that casualty rates and totals in this conflict are worse than any that American fighting men have ever known. Thus it may be wise to compare them with the record of some principal combat units in World War II.

Up until recently, the six U. S. divisions in Korea had lost 10,813 men killed. During about the same span of time, six key American divisions which fought from the Normandy beachhead to the German surrender lost 14,157 men killed. By this measure, the Korean campaign is not our roughest war.

Nor have casualties been mounting, as some people seem to believe. The rate was highest in the first critical weeks last summer. The highest numerical totals came in the weeks during and right after the Inchon landings in September, 1950. The December retreat from the Yalu river stood next highest. Neither of those totals have since been equaled.

WHEN GUESSES GO WRONG

(Wall Street Journal)

Inflationary forces have been retarded. All agree on that. But, predict those urging Congress to extend and increase controls, they will soon come into operation again. Then if there are no controls there will be a "crisis."

That is a guess. It may be right. Or it may be wrong. It comes from sources which have been wrong before.

So let's go back a few years and see what happens when controllers guess wrong. We quote from the testimony of Mr. Chester Bowles, O. P. A. administrator, before a congressional committee in 1946:

"What, then, produced the crisis which we face today on the stabilization front? Well, first of all, the tooling up process of reconversion has proceeded faster than anyone thought possible. As a result, while average take-home pay has been cut, the volume of unemployment has not reached the proportions that were feared. That means that total payrolls have stayed higher than expected, with a resulting high demand for all products of our farm and factories."

The guess was that after the war there would be 8 million unemployed and a depression. The actual fact was that there was little unemployment; instead, we had prosperity. This, Mr. Bowles assured Congress, constituted a "crisis." The way to meet that "crisis" was to give the bad guessers more power.

You can write your own conclusion to this.

MacArthur Influence Is Seen In Far East Policy

THE administration may or may not ultimately adopt General MacArthur's chief recommendations for the Far East, namely, the bombardment of China, use of Chiang Kai-shek's forces and a total blockade of the China Coast.

But it's already thoroughly clear MacArthur's return and his subsequent detailed declarations of policy have produced changes in both American and allied policy that otherwise might not have occurred—at least not with such speed as was shown.

In his testimony to the Senate committees studying Far Eastern affairs, Secretary of Defense Marshall declared it was U. S. policy never to allow Formosa to fall into Red hands. This was a stronger position than the government had heretofore taken.

Marshall also told the senators he believed the U. S. should use its veto to bar Red China from membership on the United Nations Security Council. There appears some doubt whether this is legally possible under the UN charter, but the statement nevertheless is definite evidence of a stiffened U. S. attitude toward Red China.

Since MacArthur laid his case before the country, the administration also has stepped up the pace of aid to Chiang's Nationalist forces on Formosa. A 600-man military mission is slated for early arrival there.

These things are developments in U. S. policy since MacArthur came home. Most seasoned observers feel the cause-and-effect relationship is close.

Then, too, Britain recently suspended shipments of rubber to Red China. There had been substantial pressure from the U. S. for a long time. Not until MacArthur stirred up the second great debate and revealed the depths of American feeling on this score did the British act.

Now the United Nations, largely inactive since condemning Red China as an aggressor, is rousing itself and preparing to slap economic sanctions on the Chinese. For the moment, the UN is planning only an arms embargo, but in time it may be widened to cover shipment of all goods. Here again, the action is believed a direct result of American feeling, fanned by MacArthur's statements, that the UN has been soft and ineffective in dealing with the Communist Chinese.

The wise citizen is still reserving judgment on the wisdom of MacArthur's basic recommendations until all the testimony is in. But he does not have to take sides on those issues to concede that the general has had a genuine impact on the Far Eastern policies of the free world.

The changes set forth here are matters of fact. And it is the considered view of our most expert foreign affairs analysts that MacArthur, directly or indirectly, was responsible for them all.

To the extent that he may be properly credited with inducing the West to bring its Far Eastern policies into sharper focus and greater harmony, it seems fair to suggest that the general's entry into the political forum has been salutary.

Dawson Made 'Routine' Referrals To RFC

DONALD DAWSON'S appearance before the Senate Fulbright committee appeared to confirm a conclusion that many had drawn from his earlier behavior: this White House aide lacks the consciousness of responsibility which ought to mark the character of any man working close to the president.

Dawson admitted friendship with two members of the old RFC board whom the committee has declared were subject to influence. But he insisted he had never used the connection to "mold board policy." He said he had made "routine" referrals to the RFC of persons interested in RFC matters.

Anyone with the remotest understanding of the power in the words "White House" can grasp what it might mean to any agency to get a "routine" referral from that source. And to men especially pliable under the force of influence, it seems clear such a referral would be tantamount almost to a command.

Dawson is more than modest if he doubts all this. He is plainly blind to the realities of life in politics.

Those Cards

By Gordon Martin

Folks who like to play canasta think that bridge is very dull, and that contract lovers suffer from a thickness of the skull. And the poker players also say that bridge is just a bore, and that aces, straights and flushes are their choice for evermore. But for bridge you'd like to speak a word and voice your fond regards—it's the greatest game on earth if you can only get the cards.

Now suppose you pick a lucky seat when sitting down to play, and for strange and unknown reasons, all the big ones come your way. You attract the aces, kings and queens and also lengthy suit, and with ease you make the game you bid and extra tricks to boot. And all evening long with power you are loaded to the guards—it's the greatest game on earth because you always get the cards.

But if fortune frowns upon you and you often have a bust, and a lot of lousy little hands you view with much disgust, then you think canasta players and the poker lovers too, speak the truth when they declare that bridge is just a stinker. And no longer do you sing its praise and voice your fond regards—it's a sorry entertainment if you never get the cards.

Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — It's been pretty well concealed except to their close friends, but a smoldering, sometimes bitter feud has been raging between the two top mobilization executives of the nation—Charles E. Wilson and Eric Johnston.

Both men have been in the electrical business—Wilson as head of the giant General Electric Corp., Johnston as owner of his own appliance factory in Spokane, Wash. Wilson has sometimes had rough sledding with his labor relations; Johnston has an employee profit-sharing plan which makes his factory a model for the nation.

Wilson did a good job as government production executive during World War II; Johnston for years was a farsighted chairman of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. Wilson was chairman of Truman's committee on civil liberties and tolerance; Johnston served as czar of the motion picture industry.

But, despite their vast and varied experience, the two men just don't seem to like each other.

The feud really began last winter shortly after Johnston was asked by Wilson to leave the motion picture industry to take on the headache-inspiring job of economic stabilizer. Johnston consented, provided he was given an executive order by the White House entrusting him with power to regulate prices, wages, credit, and other causes of inflation.

JOHNSTON ON LIMB

Wilson agreed. And on the strength of his agreement, Johnston went out on a limb at a press conference and stated that the president would soon issue this executive order, in effect taking a big slice out of Wilson's mobilization empire.

Immediately thereafter, Johnston's legal staff drew up the executive order, but nothing happened.

Curious, Johnston found that the order was held up by Wilson himself, the man who had promised it. Wilson's alibi for the roadblock was that his counsel, Herbert Bergson, and Peyton Ford, deputy attorney general, were opposed.

Johnston was burned up. However, he didn't go over Wilson's head to the president. Instead, he kept his mouth shut and played ball.

Meanwhile, Wilson had surrounded himself with the same type of idolaters as Harry Truman, some of them about as useful. The General Harry Vaughan of the Wilson idolaters is Sidney Weinberg, head of the giant Goldmann-Sachs Investment Banking company, who in Washington has been nicknamed head of the "department of veiled planning."

Weinberg is a suspicious gentleman who has been in charge of security. And one of his operators, apparently shadowing roly-poly Mike DiSalle, the ex-mayor of Toledo now price stabilizer, saw him lunching with Eddie Sheyfitz, former motion picture assistant to Eric Johnston.

EX-COMMIE

So, out of the clear blue, Wilson called Johnston in. Tapping a sheaf of papers in his hand, Wilson glared at Johnston almost as if he were a witness before the house un-American activities committee.

"Eric," he asked, "what about this friend of yours, Eddie Cheyfitz? Do you know that he was a member of the Communist party?"

"Certainly," replied Johnston, getting his dander up. "I've known Eddie Cheyfitz for years. And I know that 11 years ago, as a relative youngster, he was a member of the Communist party. I know that ever since then he's been most helpful to the FBI in exposing the Communists."

"I know, for example," continued Johnston, getting warmer, "that he's fought Communies in Hollywood and in the labor unions. He has such an excellent record in this respect that he's addressed the Army War college on the subject of Communism. He has also outlined the dangers of Communism in speeches before the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the Pennsylvania Manufacturers association."

"I also know that in 1947, when Cheyfitz was under attack, Archbishop Karl Alter of Ohio came to his defense. That's what I know about Eddie Cheyfitz."

"Well, Eric," said Wilson, "I just didn't want to see you hurt by your association with Eddie Cheyfitz."

Johnston told Wilson that he didn't desert his friends when he knew they were right, and left the room. He had the impression, however, that Wilson was trying to frighten him with an indirect Commie smear.

Note — Cheyfitz was a member of the labor management committee of Toledo organized by Mike DiSalle, which has done so much to bring harmonious labor-management relations in once strike-ridden Toledo. In recent years, Cheyfitz has been working for Eric Johnston in the motion picture producers office in Washington and was instrumental in introducing Johnston to DiSalle.

The Old Boy Is Troubled With Claustrophobia

African Elephants Trained At Belgian Congo Station

The annual elephant hunt at Gangala na Bodio, government station for domestication of elephants in the northeast corner of the Belgian Congo, has just ended.

"This year 14 young elephants were captured and added to the station's herd for training," reports W. Robert Moore, foreign editorial staff writer-photographer of the National Geographic Society, in a communication to the Society's Washington headquarters.

"The number was smaller than usual," says Moore, who is now making a survey of Belgium's large equatorial African colony. "Some years as many as 30 or 40 are captured during the dry season hunt from January to the end of March."

Contrary to general belief that African elephants cannot be trained, Gangala na Bodio, for years, has been domesticating these huge beasts. Its directors find them as obedient to command as Indian elephants, though the training period is usually longer. African elephants are intelligent, timid, impressionable, and usually docile. Only occasionally do the men find one slow to respond to training.

Gangala na Bodio has also disproved that African elephants will not breed in captivity, for there have been several births at the station.

Trek to Leopoldville Fair

Classical example of the use of African elephants was Hannibal's march over the Alps. There seems little question but that he used African, not Indian, elephants. After Hannibal's day, however, no serious attempts were made to domesticate the African animals until 1900, when King Leopold II ordered Commandant Laplace to try to train some for transport service, the elephant being immune to the dread tsetse fly of Africa.

Laplace began his work in 1902 with three elephants. Gangala na Bodio now has 54 trained beasts at the station. A number of others trained here have been sent elsewhere in the colony.

When Moore visited the station preparations were being made to take ten of the elephants to Leopoldville, the capital, for a fair to be held there later this year. The nearly 600-mile trek overland to Stanleyville, where they will be put aboard a river steamer for a further 1,000-mile voyage to Leopoldville, will be in charge of Monsieur Jean de Medina, famed for his capture of rare okapis and huge gorillas.

"It will take more than two months to get to Stanleyville," said Medina, "for we can travel only five to ten miles a day. The elephants have to stop along the way to feed."

"Monitors" Aid Training

To capture the elephants, a group of native "chasseurs" on foot, armed with lassos approach a herd of wild elephants and single out a young one 10 to 12 years old. The natives dash after it with ropes to lassoo its legs, and then snub the ropes around trees to prevent its escape. There is usually a wild din of stampee and trumpeting. Sometimes the mother or another adult attacks and has to be shot.

The captured animal is then tied to "monitor" elephants, one on either side; these trained beasts calm the young captive and keep it under control.

Back in camp at Gangala na Bodio systematic training then begins, stage by stage. In mornings and again in late afternoons the young elephants are marched with their monitors to the river to bathe. At nighttime they are put in heavy wooden stockades to feed.

Each young pachyderm soon gets used to a particular mahout or "comac" who trains it and feeds it with sweet potatoes, manioc root, sugar cane, and bananas. Moore reports he saw some, captured only a few weeks before, that already were begging their caretakers for special handouts.

Finally comes the day when the elephant is mounted—briefly at first, and then for longer and longer times. Eventually it is taught to kneel and rise at command. In the early stages the elephant's legs are chained. Training usually takes from 10 to 12 months.

It is a strange sight in a country where thousands of elephants roam wild to see some hauling the big red wagons loaded with supplies.

Gangala na Bodio training station lies in open bush land adjacent to Parc National de la Garie, a wild reserve in northeast Congo, bordering the Sudan, where roam large herds of elephants, tall stalking giraffes, antelopes, and numbers of the comparatively rare white rhinoceroses.

Greece, Emerging From Troubles, Holds Colorful Homecoming Year

Under cloudless Mediterranean skies, the beautiful and rugged little land of Greece is turning 1951 into "Homecoming Year."

Behind lie the postwar crisis years of Communist pressures and guerrilla warfare. Ahead stretches a holiday period of peace and gaiety—marked during the coming summer and fall by an ambitious program of festivals and sightseeing to lure the overseas visitors.

Among other travelers, thousands of Americans of Greek ancestry are expected to gather in such timeless centers as Athens, Delphi, Delos, and Salonika, notes the National Geographic Society. As in the famous festival year of 1930, hundreds of professors and students of Greek drama and history will be on hand to share in the traditions of the "glory that was Greece," traditions that reach back nearly 24 centuries to the Golden Age of Pericles.

ECA Plans Part

Some of the visitors will see homeland relatives for the first time since they left to make their fortunes in other countries. Many may find changes brought by Axis occupation of World War II.

Side Excursions Planned

Many of the events will be presented in and near the Greek capital—at Athens' marble stadium, for instance, where the Olympic games were revived in 1896; or at the theater of Herodes Atticus, where one can look toward the Acropolis and the world's architectural masterpiece, the Parthenon.

A number of side excursions also are on the program. At the August Festival of Delphi, six performances of Sophocles' "Oedipus Rex" will be given in the great theater that looks down on the ruins of the Temple of Apollo.

Another tour is to Salonika, city on the Tessalonians, where a June celebration will honor St. Paul in the magnificent Byzantine church of Saint Dimitrios.

Still other excursions include those to the famous island of Rhodes—which made modern news as the site of the Israel-Arab peace negotiations—and to the little isle of Tinos, the scene in mid August of the Feast of the Assumption of the Virgin.

Tinos is the Lourdes of Greece. This feast, held in the pilgrim church of Hagia Evangelistria, is attended by thousands of worshippers who, like the supplicants at the Grotto of Lourdes, seek cures for their ills through faith.

INDIAN NAMES—In connection with the claims of Chippewa Indians of the Upper Peninsula against the United States, it is interesting to take more than a passing look at their names—the plaintiffs as they are called.

Comprising plaintiffs of the Lake Superior band of Chippewas are names as follows:

Peters Smith, Paul LeGarde, W. D. Savage, Frank Wildcat, Sam J. Whitefeather, Peter Crow, Thomas Miller and others. Most of them are from the L'Anse and Lac Vieux Desert communities.

Their names indicate a fine mixture of old Indian, French and English—and the mixed heritage of trouble resulting from the conquest of the continent by the whites.

ON TO CONFUSION—In the beginning there was but the Indian names for places in America. In the Upper Peninsula area, French efforts to pronounce the Indian place names brought confusion, worse confounded with the arrival of the English.

On Oct. 4, 1842, the U. S. entered into a treaty with the Chippewa Indians, and the name Escanaba in that treaty appears as Skonawby. There are many other variations before and after that date, including Shoshquanaby—which probably came close to the original Indian pronunciation.

Likewise in that treaty of 1842 the name of the present Chocolay River near Marquette is spelled Chocolate.

TOUCH OF SPANISH?—The word chocolate is derived from Spanish efforts to pronounce the original Uto Indian name chocolatl.

But does the Chocolate River of Northern Michigan have anything to do with the Central American chocolatl? We rather doubt it, unless some French or English explorer gave it that descriptive name for the brown color of its water.

More likely that early French adventurers to the Upper Peninsula corrupted an original Chippewa Indian name for the river—perhaps a name that had some similarity in sound to chocolate. The present (Chocalay) spelling and pronunciation may come nearer to the original Indian than the 1842 record reveals.

THEY THE OWNERS—In their claims against the United States for additional compensation for its millions of acres ceded to the government in 1842, the Indians find the U. S. attorneys casting doubt upon their original occupancy and ownership of the area!

In reply to this question, counsel for the Indians cite the language in the treaty of 1842, in which the Indians say of the land: "Our home," "our inheritance," "our land," and other words and phrases showing they had claimed ownership.

Counsel for the Indians also asks, reasonably enough, if the Indians did not own and occupy land before the white men came—why was the treaty of 1842 necessary?

JUDGMENT SOUGHT—In their present suit for an accounting against the government in connection with the ceding of their lands under the treaty of 1842, counsel for the Indians point to a number of factors.

They charge that U. S. officials then in charge of Indian affairs provided in the treaty that 80 acres be allowed each Indian who was head of a family. After the title of the Indians was extinguished, these officials began issuing what was called "half-breed scrip" and purchased and re-sold the Indian lands to the whites—with profit to themselves.

The terms of the treaty were accepted under duress. Threats were made against the Indians, and promises were held forth that were never fulfilled by the United States. The value of the land ceded by the Indians was greater than represented by the whites.

Today, therefore, the Indians seek an accounting. Until 1946 and creation of the Indian Claims Commission no avenue of redress was open to them.

PRONUNCIATION CLINIC

Poets have said that "tomorrow" is one of the most beautiful sounding words in English. But the common mispronunciation "tuh-MOR-ruh" hasn't much in the way of euphony to recommend it. Be sure to say: too-MOR-roe.

We Americans have a peculiar quirk that is hard to explain: We usually give the final syllable the corrupt "uh" sound in these words: arrow, borrow, minnow, pillow, potato, torpedo, widow, window, yellow, willow.

But in scores of other words of similar spelling, we always give the final syllable the correct "oh" sound: banjo, buffalo, bungalow, calico, cameo, cargo, ditto, domino, flamingo, indigo, motto, presto, etc.

Those who are mindful of their speech will wisely curb the tendency to obscure the "o" or "ow" in any of the foregoing words. End the words with the clear, full sound of "oh."

Ferocity and atrocity should not have the "o" long as in ferocious and atrocious. The "o" should be short as in "odd, prospect." Be sure to say: fe-ROS-i-tee; uh-TROS-i-tee.

The word cacha is not pronounced "ka-SHAYD," as a commentator recently pronounced it. The French loan-word cache is pronounced: kash. The past tense "cached" is strictly English, and should be pronounced exactly like the word cashed, thus kash.

Huntsville: Will you please define and pronounce the word "schizophrenia" for us?—Senior Speech Class.

Answer: Literally, the word means "splitting of the mind." The term is applied to a type of insanity in which ideas of illusion and delusion are present. Schizophrenia is pronounced, SKIZ-oh-FREE-ni-uh.

Postal Rates Will Go Higher

New Revenue Won't Erase Deficit

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The House postoffice committee was ready today to put finishing touches on a bill hiking postal rates.

Proposed increases, however, were not big enough to wipe out the current post office operating deficit, estimated at $500,000,000 a year.

The committee yesterday approved boosts in mailing rates for second-class matter such as newspapers and publications. It had previously voted increases in first-class mail charges.

Still to be considered are administration requests for more revenue from third class mail and from special services.

The committee already has tentatively voted to double the present one-cent rate on picture postcards and government postal cards and to hike second-class rates eventually by 60 per cent.

From the postcard increase it hopes to obtain $47,000,000 in new revenue annually.

The second class increase would be 20 per cent annually for three years, leveling off then at 60 per cent above present rates.

Committee members predicted a 60 per cent hike in rates for third class, or bulk mailings, to yield an estimated $40,000,000 extra revenue annually.

Increases in charges for special services, such as special delivery and C.O.D. mail, may yield another $29,000,000.

Accordion Instructor Gets Life In Torture Slaying Of Pupil, 10

LONG BEACH, Calif. — (AP) — Accordion teacher Violet Berling is under life sentence for the torture slaying of her 10-year-old pupil, Kay Frances Erickson.

Miss Berling sagged, but she did not faint when sentence was pronounced yesterday by Superior Judge Fred Miller. Then she murmured: "I am innocent, your honor, I am innocent." Her remark was read into the record.

The court had refused to grant a new trial and Miss Berling's mother, Mrs. Mary Schauer, got out of her seat and shouted: "My daughter is innocent." As she was led from the room she shouted back: "This is not justice."

Miss Berling was convicted April 28 of torturing Kay Frances until she choked to death on food that blocked her throat. The child, bearing many burns and bruises, was found strangled in a chair in Miss Berling's music studio, Oct. 12. The teacher went to trial Jan. 8.

Author Miffed By Communism

Schulberg Tells Why He Dropped Reds

By BARNEY LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Author Budd Schulberg said today he was a member of the Communist party for a brief time in the late 1930's but broke with it completely because the party tried to tell him how and what to write.

Schulberg said in a statement issued in advance of his appearance as a voluntary witness before the House Un-American Activities committee that he was attracted to the party by its concern over economic problems and its opposition to the Axis powers.

From 1937 to 1939, he said, he took part in an informal study group and "drifted" in the young Communist league and the party itself.

"In 1939, at the age of 25, I broke with the Communists because of their efforts to dictate the content and direction of my literary work and because their quick switch to virtual alliance with Hitler convinced me of their intellectual dishonesty and their false claims to anti-fascist leadership," x x x

"Over the past ten years x x x at no time have I in any way renewed my association with the Communist party."

Schulberg, 37, wrote "What Makes Sammy Run?" and the current popular seller "The Disenchanted." He has also written for the movies.

House Considers Flat 12 1/2 Percent Income Tax Boost

WASHINGTON—(AP)—In a stormy, shouting session, the House Ways and Means committee voted today for a flat 12 1/2 per cent increase for individual income taxpayers and for a boost in the excess profits tax on corporations.

Both revisions were agreed upon by straight party line votes, and Republican members of the committee declared angrily that the changes were "railroaded through."

"I resent legislating by party caucuses," Rep. Simpson (R-Pa.) told reporters.

Rep. Reed of New York, ranking member of the committee, told the newsmen there had been "a major row" in today's session.

The flat 12 1/2 per cent increase in everybody's income tax was substituted for the committee's original plan of a raise of three percentage points in the rate in each tax bracket.

Staff aides said about the same amount of additional revenue would be raised under either system — $2,845,000,000 in a full year's operation.

Jam Dam Woman Still Missing

About fifty residents of Goulet township and officers of the conservation, Menominee sheriff's, and state police departments are searching today for Mrs. Manuel Roucheaux, 60, of Jam Dam, who has been missing from her home since Monday.

Footprints believed to be those of the woman were discovered yesterday but did not lead to the finding of Mrs. Roucheaux.

A Coast Guard plane from Traverse City patrolled over the Jam Dam area yesterday.

Government Payroll Adds 53,205 Persons

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The federal government's payroll increased by 53,205 persons during March to a total of 2,361,806, the Civil Service Commission said today.

Of the total at the end of the month, 243,638 persons were employed in the Washington metropolitan area and 165,492 were employed outside the continental United States.

The commission said the month's increase included a "large" payroll addition by the defense establishment, and that the treasury, agriculture and commerce departments and the Economic Stabilization agency each added more than 1,000 persons.

ANN ARBOR—(AP)—Plans for a $500,000 theological seminary to be built on Washtenaw road have been announced by the Holy Ghost Fathers, a missionary priest order.

Decoration Day Safety Urged

State Agencies Hope To Curb Accidents

LANSING—(AP)—The State Police and Health department turned loose a propaganda barrage today to head off an expected heavy traffic toll on the Memorial Day holiday.

Both warned that a score of persons probably will die over the holiday if present accident trends continue.

The State Police went further and said an average of more than 20 will die each weekend until Labor Day in Michigan.

Last year 18 persons died in accidents each summer weekend—237 out of the 430 killed all summer.

State Police Commissioner Donald S. Leonard said nearly half of the accidents resulted from excessive speed and 72 per cent occurred in rural areas.

Leonard said the fact that Memorial Day falls in mid-week this year may eliminate extended holiday days for many persons but that the single day traffic will be heavy.

Ordering all state police highway patrols at maximum strength for the holiday, Leonard told the driving public: "Don't hurry, stay with the normal flow of traffic and be on the alert at all times."

Last year 24 persons were killed on the four-day Memorial Day weekend. The record is 58 deaths in 1941 while the low point was five in 1944.

days in a valley that Chinese had turned into a scene of death.

American dead lay there, too. Survivors said the Chinese had taken the walking wounded with them.

Chinese hurrying northward already had pushed across the Pukhan and Choyang rivers north of Chunchon. This represented a 10 mile pull back in two days.

There were signs of new Red buildups to the northwest.

But Communists appeared to be losing their offensive drive even in the eastern sector.

There allies' forces beat off two strong attacks during the night. Each action was fought against 1,000 Chinese southeast of Soksa.

The Reds had cut the main lateral highway near that point 25 miles south of Parallel 38 and 25 miles inland from the sea of Japan.

But allies rushed in to check the Red advance in turn cut the Communist supply route Tuesday by seizing a key pass.

One officer said "A hell of a fight" was raging around Soksa.

Fighter planes aided armored forces in hunting down the Reds.

Altogether U. N. planes flew approximately 1,000 sorties Wednesday. Pilots reported killing 1,700 Reds in front line attacks, the air force in days.

The Reds put on a one plane attack of their own. It strayed allied lines on the western front near Munsan, 21 miles northwest of Seoul.

U. N. troops pushed on Tuesday to within five miles of Parallel 38. Big allied guns blasted Chinese fleeing over roads and across rice paddies along the border north of Seoul. Small rear guard forces and mine fields were left behind to delay the methodical U. N. advance.

Atlantic Hurricane Churning Out To Sea

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Atlantic hurricane, powered by winds up to 80 miles an hour at its center, churned out to sea today and the weather bureau cautioned all shipping in the path of the storm.

The blow was centered about 300 miles north and slightly west of Bermuda. It was moving eastward—well away from the eastern seaboard—at a speed of between 15 and 20 miles an hour.

The Freighter City of Eastbourne reported last night that she had run into the hurricane about 200 miles south of Nantucket. The vessel said it was buffeted by 75-mile and hour winds, "mountainous, confused seas and driving rain."

paid salaries.

Strong Democratic objections were not enough to block a bill advancing the primary election next year from September to the fourth Tuesday in June.

Republicans said the bill was designed to give soldiers in foreign service a better chance to vote by absentee ballot. Critics claimed the real purpose was to permit Republican candidates in the November election to start early campaigns against Democratic incumbents in the governor's chair and the United States Senate.

On a 69-19 vote, the house approved a bill requiring that the public service commission be bipartisan. The measure comes just before the expiration of the term of Commissioner Schuyler L. Marshall, the last remaining Republican on the three-man commission.

Barbers would be required to have at least a 10th grade education and other professional standards would be raised under a senate bill which the house approved 63-25.

The senate appropriations committee, on a 5-3 vote, upset predictions by agreeing to the house action of charging $7,000,000 for the teachers' retirement system to the state general fund.

Since the sales tax diversion amendment mandated the amount of state school aid, the money has been taken out of school aid.

The senate set up committees to investigate the operation of the state fair at Detroit and to study administrative procedures of state agencies.

Public fishing sites are made available by the conservation department to fishermen who do not have access on more crowded lakes.

'This Little Spray Machine Bought an Airplane for Me'

says Donald Blewett
Raymond, S. D.

"THIS SPRAYER Charlie Dripps sold me saves about 100 acres of grain every year—grain I couldn't even cut if I hadn't cleaned out the weeds with 2.4-D," says Donald Blewett (right) farmer near Raymond, S. D. "So the sprayer has earned more than enough to buy my plane, not to mention the grief it saves us." Charlie Dripps (left) is manager of the Peavey Lumber Yard in Raymond.

"If you figure an average return of $30 or $35 per acre, that means my sprayer earns $3,000 to $3,500 every year," says Don Blewett.

Blewett says the sprayer Charlie's company first brought to Raymond is one piece of equipment he and his brothers "have never regretted buying." He's glad the Peavey Agricultural Department pioneered in developing an efficient sprayer as well as in the best ways of using 2,4-D. As he told Charlie Dripps, "When I see something with the Peavey diamond on it, I know it can be depended on."

Whether it's weed control materials or lumber, Blewett and his brothers have learned to depend on Peavey Manager Charlie Dripps as a man who takes an interest in their farming problems.

There's a Peavey man in your neighborhood too. Call on him often. He wants to help you in every way he can.
